ABOUT THIS EVENT

Participants appreciate in greater depth the reality of issues involved in trying to support people to acquire socially valued roles in community life.

You visit two human services; have interviews and conversations with the people who receive the service and those who provide the service. Following each study visit, you use rigorous discussion and evaluation to analyse the impact of the service on the lives of the people who receive the service.

MAKE THE MOST OF CONTEMPORARY OPPORTUNITIES

This event assists with NDIS and Consumer Directed Care planning. It underpins the application of Person-Centred Approaches and informs questions of Choice and Control.

You use PASSING, A Tool For Analyzing Service Quality According to Social Role Valorization Criteria by Wolf Wolfensberger and Susan Thomas 2007, as a guide. PASSING broadens people's knowledge - you visit different types of services for people with different types of needs, and see the universality of some issues. Thus it renews and re-focusses people's commitments.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

Are you interested in deepening your understanding of the issues facing human services? Do you want to create positive change? If so, this workshop is for you. This includes people who are doing PASSING for the first time, as well as those who have done PASSING.

The workshop involves long hours, challenging visits and interviews, analysis, and active personal contribution by participants. It is not a useful event for anyone wanting just a 'taste' of PASSING as it requires that participants be able to devote their entire attention to the practicum.

The event will appeal most to people already deeply concerned about the difficulties faced by people who have a devalued status. It is particularly relevant these days, as we work to understand what forms of service best meet the needs of vulnerable people.
